Foodservice Operations Project Manager
Minnetonka, MN

Job Description

Love Foodservice but Ready for a Career Change?

We have a unique opportunity for someone with a background in foodservice operations who wants to exchange those challenges for new ones.

Rippe Associates designs commercial kitchens for colleges and hospitals across the country. We believe that we excel because we hire people who have foodservice operations experience. We are looking for a candidate to join us as an Operations Project Manager.

The ideal candidate should possess excellent customer service skills that promote client (owners/architects) relationships. Professionalism is key in your work practices, communication style, and appearance. You should be a problem solver who works well with teams and can flex with constant changes. Managing project schedules can be a challenge.

An operations project manager works with a principal designer, coordinating project operational design criteria and equipment selection. They assist with project management, work schedules, and project meetings, both internal and external. They assist with equipment specifications, review facilities, and develop recommendations in a narrative report. The operations project manager is active in our clients' professional organizations to help develop and maintain customer relationships.

We require a 4-year degree in a foodservice related field, and 4 years of foodservice experience. It is also helpful if you can read and interpret architectural plans/drawings.

If this sparks your interest, check out examples of our work and consider sending us your resume.
